Dawn Williams Boyd: Cloth Paintings

When: September 29–November 7

Where: Online via Fort Gansevoort

Dawn Williams Boyd embarked upon a body of large-scale fabric collages, called Cloth Paintings, in 2001. In a series titled "Sins of Our Fathers", she explores the historical exploitation of Black Americans in the United States; in "Ladies Night," she considers the healing camaraderie of Black women. Her most recent series, an inquiry into xenophobia, racism, and classism titled "The Trump Era," will also be on view.
